Reservoir Renewables

The Future of Hot Water

If you want to see your hot water costs plummet while enjoying constant hot water 24 hours a day, then you need to contact Reservoir Renewables straight away.

Called Hemera, this system completely eliminates the need for your immersion, electric showers, solar panels, and any other method of domestic water heating.

The ingenious system is very simple. A component is installed in your home that sucks up all of the excess heat in the home including steam from the bath, heat from the cooker area and hot air from the extractor fan. A sleek silver tank is then put into your hot press to replace the copper cylinder, which uses the harvested latent heat.

Reservoir Renewables usually charge €3,700 for the system, but for the next few weeks, they are running a special deal where customers can avail of the promotional price of €3,100 including installation.

Have a look at www.reservoirrenewables.com for more information, pop down the Unit 8 Euro Innovation Park in Little Island or call 021 482 1646 to avail of the promotional offer.
